

Recycle, Resell and Renew —with Philips Hospitality

Since 1994, Philips has driven sustainability in all aspects of product development through our EcoDesign process. In 2008, Philips Hospitality took it to the next level with development of a commercial television recycling program. In 2010, through the services of Stevens Digital Group, our television recycling program continues to service the hotelier, and the planet.

Partnering with Philips cultivates peace of mind – save the planet and diminish the threat of liability to your establishment. In today's world, helping to reduce waste, particularly e-waste, is not only good for the earth in which we live, but also good for your business. Be mindful when your electronics have reached or are approaching end of life:

- Only sell or donate working equipment
- Responsibly manage unusable materials -RECYCLE
- Do not assume that a buyer will properly handle equipment that parts were taken from for repair
- Fully research any liquidator that will purchase or remove televisions for free
- Be tough when evaluating equipment –don't pass problem equipment on to others
- Selling or donating unusable equipment is unfair, and may make it difficult to find groups to take working equipment in the future.

Make it with steps towards a seamless electronics renovation experience.
